THE OCCULT AND THE COMMUNITY:

WHAT EVERY COMMUNITY POLICE OFFICER NEEDS TO KNOW ABOUT OCCULT ACTIVITIES

PROGRAM

When community-oriented police officers exit their cars and enter the community they are finding a dramatic increase in occult related activity, both criminal and noncriminal. This seminar focuses on teaching the law enforcement officer, teacher, or social worker the various occult and alternative religious practices they will encounter.

Teen suicide, drugs, and sexual molestation are all part of the occult related crimes rapidly growing within our communities. Witchcraft, satanism, santeria, and New Age are all government protected religions that are also found at all levels of today's society. Learn the differences between criminal and protected occult practices and how the progressive community-oriented police department needs to respond to this new challenge.

This two-day seminar will be nonjudgemental in nature and will explore basic knowledge about the beliefs and practices of various occult groups. It will demonstrate how the occult is used today as a cover for criminal activity in the community. Case studies, actual occult ritual scenes, and numerous audiovisual supported materials will take you into the world of the occult.

INSTRUCTOR

Sergeant Edward Maxwell, Investigator, New Castle County Department of Police, New Castle, Delaware.

Sergeant Maxwell is a fifteen year veteran of the New Castle County Police Department. Over the past several years, he has spent considerable time working with and studying occult groups along the east coast. Sergeant Maxwell has investigated criminally motivated groups and has attended many local rituals of legitimate neo-pagan groups. Sergeant Maxwell is an outstanding instructor on this topic and has served as guest lecturer to numerous agencies on the east coast as well as appearing on various television and radio programs.

IF FUNDS FOR TRAINING ARE SHORT, READ THE IMPORTANT NOTICE BELOW AND LEARN OF A NEW WAY TO PROVIDE ADDITIONAL TRAINING FOR YOUR PERSONNEL AT NO COST!

The University of Delaware has developed an innovative and highly cost-effective means to provide free training for your personnel at your own location. It offers your agency the opportunity to train five of its officers at no cost for every program conducted at your site. Further, you decide which program will be offered and there are no contracts to sign and never a financial obligation. Best of all, prices for outside agencies have been significantly reduced due to the new pricing structure.

In this space, we cannot provide all the details of the approach. We have prepared a document which describes the concept in full. For your copy, write or call:
